

SPECIAL

WINDOM GALLIHER MONTGOMERY UPDATE

NOVEMBER 20, 2015

In all things, give thanks ...

For all of us here at Windom, Galliher & Associates, Thanksgiving is a special time of year. It certainly will mean time spent with family and friends, and it will mean that we probably should cut back on dessert for a few weeks after until the Christmas holidays arrive.

We're grateful for many things. We're grateful your business and your friendship. We do what we do because you've placed your trust in us, and we don't ever want you to feel taken for granted. We're grateful for the relationships we share among our own team. We are a diverse crew in experiences and personalities, but we work well together.

Also, we're grateful for the people that serve and before whom we represent your interests. Two of us have served as legislators, and the rest of the team has served in state government. We understand the demands on their time, and the pressures associated with it.

Thanksgiving means a lot to us because of the memories of days gone by – of our us to do what we do. None of us had this specific career ambition as a child or even as young adults, but the twists and turns of life led us here. We're grateful for the times good and bad that have brought us to this point because we've learned much from both.

And, yes, Thanksgiving means that another year is coming to a close. February will bring us another legislative session. We're already working hard to prepare. We'll take a brief timeout for a couple of days next week to be thankful.

So whether your favored dessert is pumpkin pie or pecan pie, enjoy the time available to you with family and friends this Thanksgiving season. Please know that when we count our blessings this coming week, you'll be among them.

childhoods, cherishing the memories of loved ones we've lost, and savoring each moment with those still among us.

Professionally, none of us expected to be where we are right now, but we are grateful for the grace of God that allows

WINDOM, GALLIHER & ASSOCIATES

WWW.WINDOMGALLIHER.COM

334-241-0078

Note: The Windom Galliher Montgomery Update publishes weekly during legislative sessions and otherwise as events warrant.